Political Science

Political Science is an offshoot of Social Science. It is a multidisciplinary field that integrates knowledge, hypothesis and research methods that apply to all political relations. The department takes various steps to create interest about the subject among the students. The department takes various initiatives and organizes educational tour for its students.

After completion of bachelor or master degree and qualifying competitive exam(NET, SET) the students of political science can choose his /her career as follows:

Teacher(school, college, university)

Research Analyst (university, research institution),

Opportunities as political Journalist, Civil Service, Administrative Service and Political Adviser.

A graduate of political science can often pursue a career as a judge in law.

Philosophy

“Philosophy is to be studied, not for the sake of any definite answers to its questions, since no definite answers can, as a rule, be known to be true, but rather for the sake of the questions themselves; because these questions enlarge our conception of what is possible, enrich our intellectual imagination, and diminish the dogmatic assurance which closes the mind against speculation; but above all because, through the greatness of the universe which philosophy contemplates, the mind also is rendered great, and becomes capable of that union with the universe which constitutes its highest good.” - Russell

Philosophy as an academic discipline is relevant as it reflects the philosophical knowledge as well as the existing and emerging social ethical problems. It is worth mentioning that the study of Philosophy as a major subject in undergraduate course may lead to a bright career. Several avenues open for the students after the completion of their graduate course.

Teaching Profession: School Teacher & College & University Professor

Advisory :Ethical Adviser & Ethical Strategy Maker

Administrative: Appearing W.B.C.S. & U.P.S.C. Examination

Sociology

To get a general outline of the scope of sociology, first, the analysis of various institutions, associations and social groups are required. Secondly, study the link among different parts of society. Thirdly, Sociology addresses itself to the factors which contribute to social stability and social changes. Fourthly, explain the changing patterns and the aftermath of the changes in the society. We, in the department, believe in an active and robust engagement with the above mentioned issues. The department creates a forum for the newer forms of knowledge that comprehends and represents diversity of Indian societal context. The courses taught in the department reflect collective commitment towards innovation, move beyond untenable stereotypes, and explore a new world of knowledge. The broader prospects of sociology are diverse, they are as follows:

- Appear in NET/ SLET examination after completion of post graduation
- Teaching profession in schools, colleges, and universities.

Department of English

The aim of the English Department is to guide students in a way that can help develop their thought processes and critical faculties independently. Rather than accepting ideas readily, they are encouraged to ask the two most significant questions: 'why' and 'how'.

The primary focus of the teachers of the department is on the prescribed texts. It is only after a detailed analysis of the basic texts that further reference works are encouraged. The department provides materials from online journals and articles regularly to help students remain updated on current critical trends in literature. Departmental seminars are arranged regularly where students are encouraged to present papers that help develop independent critical thinking, train them to frame an argument properly and develop it logically. Apart from departmental seminars, class tests are conducted regularly where a student's attendance is compulsory. Through this process of constant evaluation, the student understands his/her academic status and the amount of effort he/she needs to invest in trying to improve himself/herself further.

The department regularly arranges film screenings of the prescribed dramas and novels as the department believes that audio-visual rendition of literary texts help students to understand the texts thoroughly. Discussions regarding a film, its merits and demerits, how faithful is the film to the original text, are encouraged. Such discussions enable students to place the texts within contemporary cultural milieu and help the students have a better understanding of the texts discussed in class.

History offers three main specialisations - archaeology, museology and archival studies. With a background in history, you can specialise in these fields as most of these courses are offered at the postgraduate level. There are several universities across the country offering post-graduate degrees in archaeology, numismatics and epigraphy. After doing post graduate in the above specialisation you can also be an archivist, museumologist, heritage and conservancy professional.

A degree in history also offers you a set of a wide range of careers such as law, publishing, journalism and the media, librarianship and advertising. Department of Sanskrit

Sanskrit has played a vital role in the development of all Indian languages and in the preservation of the cultural heritage of India. No Indian language can flourish without the help of Sanskrit. Sanskrit also provides the theoretical foundation of ancient sciences. Hence, it becomes essential to preserve and propagate Sanskrit for all-round development of India.

Sanskrit was the language of Science Technology, Medicine, Mathematics, Law, Economics, etc. Sanskrit was a laboratory thought unfortunately it has become a 'temple' now. The need of the hour is to probe and investigate Sanskrit, not worship it, not bring emotion to Sanskrit but rational thought process. As Maharshi Aurobindo had said, Vedas are an issue of contemplation, the secular Sanskrit need to be explored, researched and experimented. It has to be evaluated critically. There is need for a bridging of both ancient and modern, and a synthesizing of all the great thoughts of both east and west.

Philosophy means Love of Wisdom. It is the study of knowledge and 'thinking about thinking'. It teaches critical thinking and logical analysis which helps us to understand the world. The student who study philosophy as a subject can learn how to live with critical eye.

The Department of Philosophy was established in 2013 under the WBSU when Philosophy as a subject was introduced in the General classes. Philosophy as an Honours subject began its journey in 2015. There are four full-time teachers in the department at present to fulfil the academic interest of the students. All of them guide their students towards developing their inner talent in various fields by involving them in debates, seminars and discussions in class. Students are encouraged to participate in extension activities like NSS, Sports, Cultural activities etc. The students as well as teachers lend books from the college library. Moreover, they have access to departmental library and Book Bank.

The Department wishes that many potential students will be associated with us in the new academic year. It is hoped that the department will be more improved and flourished by the mutual co-operation of the students and teachers.

Department of English

The aim of the English Department is to guide students in a way that can help develop their thought processes and critical faculties independently. Rather than accepting ideas readily, they are encouraged to ask the two most significant questions: 'why' and 'how'.

The primary focus of the teachers of the department is on the prescribed texts. It is only after a detailed analysis of the basic texts that further reference works are encouraged. The department provides materials from online journals and articles regularly to help students remain updated on current critical trends in literature. Departmental seminars are arranged regularly where students are encouraged to present papers that help develop independent critical thinking, train them to frame an argument properly and develop it logically. Apart from departmental seminars, class tests are conducted regularly where a student's attendance is compulsory. Through this process of constant evaluation, the student understands his/her academic status and the amount of effort he/she needs to invest in trying to improve himself/herself further.

The department regularly arranges film screenings of the prescribed dramas and novels as the department believes that audio-visual rendition of literary texts help students to understand the texts thoroughly. Discussions regarding a film, its merits and demerits, how faithful is the film to the original text, are encouraged. Such discussions enable students to place the texts within contemporary cultural milieu and help the students have a better understanding of the texts discussed in class.

Department of Sanskrit

Sanskrit has played a vital role in the development of all Indian languages and in the preservation of the cultural heritage of India. No Indian language can flourish without the help of Sanskrit. Sanskrit also provides the theoretical foundation of ancient sciences. Hence, it becomes essential to preserve and propagate Sanskrit for all-round development of India.

Sanskrit was the language of Science Technology, Medicine, Mathematics, Law, Economics, etc. Sanskrit was a laboratory thought unfortunately it has become a 'temple' now. The need of the hour is to probe and investigate Sanskrit, not worship it, not bring emotion to Sanskrit but rational thought process. As Maharshi Aurobindo had said, Vedas are an issue of contemplation, the secular Sanskrit need to be explored, researched and experimented. It has to be evaluated critically. There is need for a bridging of both ancient and modern, and a synthesizing of all the great thoughts of both east and west.

"Be a free thinkers and don't accept everything you here as truth. Be critical and evaluate what you believe in."

—Aristotle

Philosophy means Love of Wisdom. It is the study of knowledge and 'thinking about thinking'. It teaches critical thinking and logical analysis which helps us to understand the world. The student who study philosophy as a subject can learn how to live with critical eye.

The Department of Philosophy was established in 2013 under the WBSU when Philosophy as a subject was introduced in the General classes. Philosophy as an Honours subject began its journey in 2015. There are four full-time teachers in the department at present to fulfil the academic interest of the students. All of them guide their students towards developing their inner talent in various fields by involving them in debates, seminars and discussions in class. Students are encouraged to participate in extension activities like NSS, Sports, Cultural activities etc. The students as well as teachers lend books from the college library. Moreover, they have access to departmental library and Book Bank.

The Department wishes that many potential students will be associated with us in the new academic year. It is hoped that the department will be more improved and flourished by the mutual co-operation of the students and teachers.

It is located at Thakurnagar, on the northern fringe of North 24 Parganas district, just 70 kilometers away from Kolkata. As the head of the institution, I would like to take the opportunity to convey my sincere thanks and gratitude to all administrative and social Institutions as well as neighbouring people who joined hands with us and extended every support during the last ten years to fulfill the 'Golden project' of the Government.
