

Report on Wall Magazine 'Itikotha'
Theme: "Agni Juger Agni Kanya"
Department of History, P. R. Thakur Government College
Date: 12th May 2025

The Department of History of P. R. Thakur Government College organized a wall magazine presentation titled "Itikotha" on 12th May 2025. The central theme of the wall magazine was "Agni Juger Agni Kanya", highlighting the contribution and courage of women during the revolutionary period of India's freedom struggle.

The programme aimed to create awareness among students about the significant role played by women in the anti-colonial movement. Through the wall magazine, students presented historical information, illustrations, photographs, quotations, and creative writings related to women revolutionaries and their participation in the struggle for independence. The theme particularly emphasized the bravery, sacrifice, determination, and patriotism of women who challenged colonial rule despite facing social and personal hardships.

The wall magazine provided an opportunity for students of the Department of History to explore historical events beyond conventional classroom learning. The creative presentation also encouraged students to connect historical knowledge with artistic expression and develop a deeper understanding of the contributions of women to Indian history.

The initiative was educational as well as creative. It successfully encouraged student participation and helped highlight the often-underrepresented stories of women in the freedom movement. The presentation of "Itikotha" reflected the Department of History's effort to promote historical awareness and student engagement through innovative academic activities.

Overall, the wall magazine on "Agni Juger Agni Kanya" was a meaningful academic initiative. It paid tribute to the courage and sacrifices of women associated with India's freedom struggle while inspiring students to learn about history from diverse perspectives.

Submitted by:
Department of History
P. R. Thakur Government College
Date: 12th May 2025

Some Pictures:

